Dear Parents and Students

This is the long quarter where there is a strong emphasis on routine, making good academic progress, keeping balance in students' lives and ensuring that their emotional well being is taken care of. Having said that this is also the quarter when students get tired and grumpy so the staff will be paying particular attention to their attitudes and behavior, reinforcing the expectations of the house. Students feel emotionally safe when they know that we are there to support them under the framework of clear expectations. This is what you can do and this is what you can't do. Knowing they have clear boundaries avoids them guessing and therefore gives a strong sense of security.
